what is extra hands?

Many people would love to be volunteering, making a personal commitment to the sustainability of this State, but find it difficult to fit volunteering into a busy schedule alongside commitment and passion for their work.

The extra hands Corporate Volunteer Program offers you the opportunity to provide time and support for your employees to make a difference to the world around them. As a consequence they will surely be more able to perform to the high standards they aspire to when back at work.

What better way to show commitment to supporting the values held by your employees and to build the capacity to work together productively? At the same time they will be undergoing on ground real life practical projects to help advance Tasmanian environmental sustainability.

1. Create an extra hands volunteer team within your workplace.

Receive volunteer project information at the workplace for discussion at coffee break. Employees can elect to participate in the project as a extra hands group, and with your authorisation take time off work to participate (not all projects occur during work time). Employees will be individually recorded as extra hands volunteers, and are therefore able to respond independently to any volunteer project call up that occurs out of office hours.

2. Be an extra hands business partner

Discuss with extra hands opportunities for special environmental volunteer team projects just for your employees or leadership team.

Receive volunteer project information at the workplace for discussion at coffee break. Employees can elect to participate in the project as a extra hands group, and with your authorisation take time off work to participate (not all projects occur during work time).
